This is Bo.

Once upon a time, there were three little bears who lived by the river.

Bo was the youngest cub in his family.

One day the whole family went to the river to catch some fish for dinner.

The little bear needed to learn first.

She jumped over a fish and caught it with her big long claws.

"But that's too hard for me.
I don't think I can do it."

And she told his brothers to stand by his side.

Bo tried once, twice, three, four, ten times but he couldn't get any fish.

He looked sadly down in the water.

He jumped on that fish and caught it with his small claws.

Bo saw a fish stuck in front of their feet. He had a big smile and a great idea.

"I caught a fish.
I am so strong.
I can do anything!"

His brothers laughed and helped him get out of the water.

"My brothers helped me. They helped me catch the fish."

"Thank you my brothers. By working together we can do anything."
